

Compulsory Task 1

I am taking the software engineering bootcamp as I have a few tech goals in mind. The first goal is that I would like to set up an EdTech business that focuses on improving student's literacy and storytelling through immersive quandaries (a quandary is where you are faced with a range of options/problems and the decision you make will alter the course of the narrative).

I will use the skills learnt from Hyperiondev's Software Engineering bootcamp to help me achieve this ambition. The bootcamp has introduced me to the concept of pseudo code which is imperative in the design of any software. I have also learnt about different data types and variables, ensuring that users can input data and the output will be personalised to them.

The Hyperiondev syllabus covers if, elif, else and for loops which will help immensely in designing the software needed to turn this into a reality. I plan on using web applications and I will learn about this in more detail during the django lectures.

Secondly, as Hyperiondev's bootcamp focuses primarily on Python and other languages that complement it, such as Django, it will provide me the essential skills which are in high demand in the job market- there are currently over 21k Python jobs advertised in the UK on LinkedIn and over 17k on Indeed. Whilst working on my own business idea, I plan on developing my tech skills in a permanent setting for a mid-large size company where I can grow even more. Knowing Python will allow me to tap into this 21k job void. Without this bootcamp, I would not have been in a position to have done this.
